SERVICE TO THE PROFESSION

Editorships

Senior Editor, Studies in Medieval and Reformation Traditions. Leiden: E.J. Brill), July 2020-present; member of the editorial board 2009-2020.

Founded by Heiko Oberman, this series is regarded by many as the most important international series to combine medieval and early modern intellectual, social, cultural, and religious history, with over 220 volumes in print since 1962. The first volume was the dissertation of my teacher, Jane Dempsey Douglas, one of the very first feminist church historians. Upon my appointment, I expanded the editorial board to include specializations in non-western histories and traditions, maintaining gender parity and increasing ethnic diversity. Responsibilities involve supervision and final decisions on all proposals and manuscript submissions.

Co-Editor, with Christoph Markschiess (Berlin) and Christian Albrecht (Munich), Arbeiten zur Kirchengeschichte. Berlin: DeGruyter, January 2020-present.

Founded in 1925 by two of the most prominent Protestant church historians in Germany, Hans Lietzmann and Karl Holl, with over 140 volumes in print, the series remains an important venue for the publication of new work in German, French, and English on all aspects of the history of theology and the Christian church. I am responsible medieval and early modern contributions.
